Bastle Wood Very peaceful, private & appealing mixed woodland in the Southern Uplands with excellent internal access, versatile shed and views over Daer Valley

Description

Situated in a very secluded yet accessible spot, bathed in fresh clean air and overlooking big forests, hills and a wide river plain, Bastle Wood has a splendid sense of space and isolation. It is a tucked away haven, yet still within 50-60 miles drive from Glasgow, Edinburgh and Carlisle. The surroundings are steeped in archaeological and local history with significant Mesolithic and Bronze Age findings nearby and remains of old fortified farmhouses - Bastles - built to defend against the Border Reivers, Smithwood Bastle being a close by example.

Bastle Wood is a charming, must-see native upland woodland where the restocked trees, approaching 20 years of age, are gaining stature and canopy cover and will accelerate in growth from here onwards. It is a good time to become a custodian of such a wood whether to simply enjoy the many healthy benefits or relaxing holiday breaks it will provide you. It is also an ideal stage for using or developing one's practical skills for woodland and nature conservation, managing trees, harnessing views or extending private paths and glades through the wood. The sustainable forestry, outdoors and recreational activities to be had in one's own wood are numerous.

The main species are birch, rowan, alder, Scots pine, willow and self-seeded Norway spruce from a previous conifer plantation. It is now well-established mixed woodland with a diverse woodland ground flora, enhanced by the native and amenity focussed restocking in 2005. Ferns, foxgloves and upland grasses compete with peat mosses, lichens and liverworts in the open breathing spaces. Good air flow and drainage are important to healthy trees and woodlands and some skilled pruning, timely thinning and brashed paths would have multiple benefits. Furthermore it generates material for wildlife habitat piles and it is a fun and rewarding activity.

The woodland includes an excellent 150m internal track, bays for parking and camping with family or friends, a useful shed and boasts superb elevated views from various spots. There is a central extendable clearing for private camping, meditation or outdoor play. Four main watercourse drains provide watering holes for roe deer, other fauna and a sanctuary for frogs and tadpoles. Territorial tawny owls are openly prevalent and a good indicator of how beautifully wild, healthy a habitat and remote an area Bastle Wood is deeply ensconced within.

Surrounding Area

There is much to explore and do in the vicinity of Bastle Wood. The Daer Water and Reservoir offer some good fishing (with permits) and wildlife watching, with local sightings of osprey recorded. The Lowther Hills range forming part of the Southern Uplands has several Donald mountains and far-reaching views to savour. The coast-to-coast Southern Upland (S.U.) Way passes Bastle Wood and reaches its halfway point nearby. Lowther Hill (725m high) and its community run winter Ski Centre is about a 5 mile walk east along the S.U. Way.

Further afield, the Forest of Ae and Drumlanrig Castle estates offer highly scenic cycle and mountain bike trails, magnificent forest walks and red squirrel encounters, both within 30 minutes drive. To the north, the River Clyde meanders towards Lanark and the beautiful Falls of Clyde waterfalls, wooded gorge and wildlife reserve. For more practical needs there are good pubs and facilities in the nearest towns of Thornhill, Moffat and Biggar, a sawmill at Carronbridge and a friendly village shop-cafe in Abington.

Access Servitude

There is a right of access for all purposes over approximately 1 mile of a private hardstanding farm and forestry track as shown in green on the Maps. As is usual in Scotland, maintenance of shared tracks is according to use.

Sporting Rights, Mineral Rights and Timber

Sporting rights are owned, in hand and included with the land. Mineral rights are understood to be reserved by statute or to a previous owner. All timber, whether standing, fallen or cut, is included with the land.

Covenant, Grant Scheme and Residential Planning Permission (for Covenant detail see end of brochure)

The woodland is subject to a covenant to ensure the peaceful enjoyment of this and adjoining woodland(s). There are no outstanding grant payments due or restocking obligations applicable to the woodland. You are extremely unlikely to get residential planning permission for this woodland.

Boundaries

The boundaries are clearly indicated by the fence or dyke along the north, east and south boundaries, and by marked posts along the west boundary. As is usual in Scotland, boundaries are mutually shared with adjacent landowners unless agreed or stated otherwise in the title deeds.

To View This Woodland

You are welcome to view this woodland at any time during daylight hours. We request you advise us of your visit and check it is still available for sale prior to travel. ### Directions (Maps are provided below)

- Travelling either southwest or northeast on the A702 road between Elvanfoot and Durisdeer, about 3 miles southwest from Elvanfoot turn off on to the minor road signposted for Daer Waterworks.
- Continue on this minor road for about 3 miles in the direction of Daer Reservoir as shown on the Maps below.
- After turning right and crossing the bridge before the Daer Waterworks, follow the minor road towards Daer Reservoir and take the second right turn off onto the private gravel track as shown in green on the Maps.
- This track is passable with 2WD but is more suitable for 4WD vehicles. Head west for about 1 mile along the track to the parking area identified by P on the Maps. With 2WD vehicles you may choose instead to park near the start of the gravel track and walk along to the wood.
- Parking at P in front of the Bastle Wood entrance gate, climb safely over the padlocked gate and walk up the internal track to enter and explore the woodland.
- Please leave all access track gate(s) exactly as you find them on the route to Bastle Wood thank you.
